confirmation is one of the most widespread practices in the contemporary church although much confusion exists about its relationship to faith is confirmation a rite of passage is it just one step on an unfolding journey of faith are new privileges granted and additional responsibilities required of confirmands christian educator richard robert osmer addresses these questions as he examines the theological significance of confirmation osmer surveys early church practices of confirmation and offers a comprehensive discussion of the particularities of the protestant experience of confirmation including presbyterian episcopal lutheran and methodist practices he discovers a need for a renewed understanding of confirmation in today s church he proposes a two step process of confirmation that would address the unique concerns and understandings of those involved at two distinct and significant developmental transitions from youth to adolescence and from adolescence to adulthood

the subject of baptism continues to be of considerable interest though it frequently appears within broader studies of sacraments liturgy worship and ecumenical studies and within confessional bounds credobaptist or paedobaptist yet it is rarely discussed by evangelicals this book however is neither an apologetic for credobaptism nor paedobaptism rather cross believes that as practiced today both forms are a departure from new testament baptism which he maintains was an integral part of becoming a christian and part of the proclaimed gospel he argues that the one baptism of ephesians 4 5 is conversion baptism and that the baptism referred to in the various new testament strata refers to this one baptism of spirit and water the study sets out the case for this interpretation and contends that in key passages baptism is an example of synecdoche the case is then made for a sacramental interpretation of baptism from a thoroughgoing evangelical perspective cross concludes with reflections on the necessity of baptismal reform and the relevance of a return to conversion baptism for the contemporary church in a post christian post christendom mission setting
